REPORT

The Add-on ACCA Programme for the academic year 2025–2026 was successfully conducted as part of the institution's commitment to providing a robust and comprehensive education in financial reporting and analysis. Designed to equip students with valuable knowledge and skills, the programme integrated the Knowledge and Skill level modules of the ACCA Professional Qualification, making learners highly competent in the global finance industry. By aligning with international standards, the pathway offered students the strategic advantage of preparing for formal ACCA examinations while simultaneously progressing toward accredited postgraduate provisions with significant exemptions.

The curriculum for the 2025–2026 cycle was delivered through a systematic blend of offline and online methodologies, totaling 460 planned hours to ensure both effective delivery and learning flexibility. During the first and second semesters, the programme focused on foundational subjects including Business and Technology, Principles of Accounting and Finance, Business Law, and Management Accounting and Financing Needs. As students progressed into the third and fourth semesters, the curriculum introduced advanced modules such as Financial Reporting, Advanced Management Accounting, Financial Management, Auditing in Practice, and Taxation (UK). Assessment and academic rigor were maintained through a structured two-tier evaluation system. Each subject was assessed via a formal three-hour examination (A1) worth 70% of the total marks, alongside a coursework component (A2) worth 30%. These coursework assignments included essays, detailed reports, and case studies designed to encourage analytical thinking and practical application. For instance, the Principles of Accounting and Finance module required students to demonstrate their ability to prepare trial balances and financial position statements, while the Management Accounting module utilized scenario-based learning to evaluate budgetary control and forecasting techniques. Comprehensive study resources, including a Learning Management System (LMS), revision kits, and technical articles, were provided to ensure students remained workplace-ready and confident in their professional capabilities.

Overall, the Add-on ACCA Programme for 2025–2026 served as a vital platform for academic and professional growth. By combining rigorous internal assessments with global professional standards, the initiative successfully prepared students for the challenges of the international accounting and auditing sectors. The programme continues to empower students to achieve globally recognized qualifications, ensuring they remain competitive in a rapidly evolving business environment.
