RESOURCE PERSON'S PROFILE

Ms. Irene Baby

Development Economist, Ministry of Albania

Irene is a development economist with the Prime Minister's Office, Tirana, Albania. She has worked as a policy advisor, as part of the technical secretariat leading Albania's governance reforms towards fighting corruption, and promoting transparency and accountability. Previously, she was an ODI Fellow at the Ministry of Education in Rwanda where she was part of planning and budgeting activities of the education sector. She has also worked in the field of financial inclusion in India. Irene's experiences in policy-making and development have grounded her understanding of the State and the diverse ways in which it is experienced by different stakeholders. Her broad areas of research interests include development interventions, governance reforms and state-society relations.

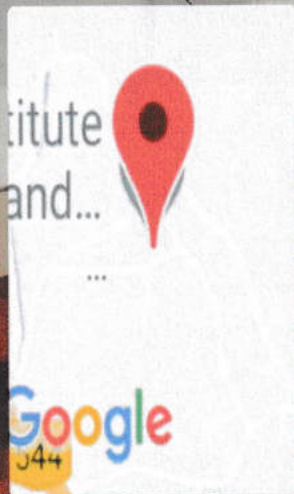

Irene holds an integrated Masters in Economics from the Indian Institute of Technology Madras and a MSc in Economics for Development from the University of Oxford. She pursued the latter as a Weidenfeld scholar.
