REPORT

The PG Department of English at Naipunnya College, Pongam hosted our annual department literature festival on the 5th and 9th of January 2023. At the 2023 edition of Chutney Soca, 22 competitions were conducted, with more than 200 registrations, and around 15 colleges participated. The inaugural ceremony of Chutney Soca took place at MBA Seminar hall on 6th January, 2023. The chief guest for the day was Fr. Anil Kiliyelikkudy, currently the vicar of Lusie Little Flower Church and former alumnus of the English Department. Fr Anil officially flagged off the events followed by a presidential address by Rev. Fr. Dr. Paulachan Kaithottungal, Executive Director of Naipunnya Institute of Management and Information Technology. Chutney Soca, the NIMITIAN festival of literature is a mixture of literary and cultural events conducted annually by the students and faculty members of the English Department. The word chutney soca seems familiar but also enigmatic. Chutney Soca is a style of music that has cultural origins in the Indian towns and villages of Trinidad, Tobago, and the Caribbean. This form of music has whimsical lyrics, a crossover of Indian and western instrumentals, and the intermingling of the shared histories of two different cultures. No other word would better describe the celebration of literature hosted by a group of whimsical, odd, out-of-the-box thinkers and learners of the English department family.

The main coordinators of the 2023 Chutney Soca were Ms Sharon Varghese and Ms Vandana Martin assisted by the student coordinators - Ms Angel Roy and Mr Noorul Ameen from II MA English. The event was conducted over a course of two days on the 6th and 9th of January, 2023. Chutney Soca 2023 began on Thursday 5th of January with all competitions held offline, from 10:30 am to 4:00 pm. Participation was open to invited colleges and UG and PG students of NIMIT.

THEME: IN-BETWEEN WORLDS

The PG Department of English announced the third edition of the inter-collegiate literary fest. The theme for the year 2023 is In Between Worlds.

In the English Language, the term in-between means situated between two extremes. Young or old, we all live in spurts of energy that wax and wane between day and night, like a pendulum tired of the back and forth, stretching itself to the other side until friction brings it to a stop. We shuffle between college and home, hostel and classroom, teacher and student. Moving forward in this loop means finding a corner in-between these worlds that is isolated and one's very own.

In-between worlds could mean many things to many people. It could be a sacred space for those who get exhausted every day between work and home. It could be the daily walk a student takes from home to the classroom. It could be a KSRTC window seat, a quiet waiting shed, or a small corner of your bedroom where you hide from the weight of the day. The in-between is a place of rest. It is the place where you take off your shoes to thank your legs for carrying you from dawn to dusk. It is a place where you allow yourself to flicker like the last bits of a wick waiting for the candle to drown and extinguish it.

At the department of English, our teachers visit classrooms across disciplines every day. In literature classes, we urge our students to write their hearts out, read from someone else's point of view, and seek stories from worlds beyond them. Teachers spend weeks on end marking semicolons in student assignments and chasing runaway commas. We do this so that our students can think and speak without full stops. We live in interesting times, and our classrooms mirror them. Language is not only the way by which we perceive the world but also an identity that is constantly changing. English and Malayalam are no longer two sides of a coin but have become two large waves holding a small boat up to a sky of new adventures. Some students have found a home in the English language, while others struggle with putting together words and their worlds. When teachers teach/fight against the hesitancy of students to speak their minds, teaching becomes a process of stitching together their diverse worlds. In a country where learning to read and speak English is a privilege, teaching becomes an act of finding identity in-between our mother tongue and the English language. In short, teaching language and literature is a way of finding a hyphenated identity.

At this year's department fest, we pay homage to this in-between. At Chutney Soca 2023, we bridge together fictional worlds we read about in classrooms and the real worlds we see and experience every day. This is our in-between sort of world. We cordially welcome you to experience this festival with us.
