Report

Peer learning is an education method that helps students solidify their knowledge by teaching each other. One student tutoring another in a supervised environment can result in better learning and retention. Peer learning fosters teamwork, cooperation, patience, and better social skills. In a cooperative peer learning environment, each student's strengths can serve to complement the group and enhance learning. Becoming skilled at working with and learning from one's peers can start at a young age in the classroom. Often, students are not able to recognize the gaps in their own knowledge, but when they learn with their peers, they can see new processes for answering questions and come up with creative, collaborative solutions. Importantly, they will carry these new perspectives, as well as a willingness to seek and accept feedback with them as they progress in their education.

Peer learning fosters diversity and depth in a student's knowledge and opinions. Learning from peers of different backgrounds, views, and ethnicities fosters an environment of mutual respect, gratitude, and progress. It's the differences between students that add richness to the learning environment. Supporting diversity through peer learning is part of culturally responsive teaching.

Department of English has a practice of organizing Peer teaching sessions for the students of M.A English Language and Literature. Peer teaching was arranged for the Semester V, B.A English Literature students as a part of their curriculum. The session was conducted on 21st August in Semester V, B.A English Classroom. This was organized to enhance the ability of teaching among the students.

Mr. Joyal Shaji, a student of I M.A, English Language and Literature, was allotted with the topic "Branches of Linguistics". He was given a training session prior to take a class for an hour. It was monitored and he was given corrective suggestions at the end of the class by Dr. Purnima S Kumar, Head of the Department of English. One could see that the students took classes with confidence and good preparation. A feedback was collected from the students after his class.
