REPORT

An interdepartmental quiz competition was successfully conducted on 13 June 2024 with the objective of promoting awareness about the importance of voluntary blood donation among students. The event, organised as part of a broader campaign to support humanitarian values, drew enthusiastic participation from various academic departments. Designed to test the students' knowledge about blood donation, the quiz covered multiple aspects including eligibility criteria, health benefits, myths and facts, and the critical role of regular donors in saving lives.

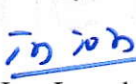

Participants showcased excellent preparation and competitive spirit, turning the event into an intellectually stimulating experience. The team comprising Abhimanyu K. B. and Nandana M. S. from the Computer Science Department emerged victorious, clinching the first prize. The second prize was bagged by Hannah K. G. and Seethalakshmi N. R. of the Commerce Department, who also displayed commendable performance. Prizes were distributed to the winners in the presence of faculty members, who applauded the efforts of all participants.

The event not only provided a platform for learning and healthy competition but also succeeded in reinforcing the values of social responsibility and empathy. Faculty members took the opportunity to urge students to contribute to this noble cause by becoming regular donors and advocates for voluntary blood donation.
